TARGET USER

Vietnamese Gen Z young adults between the ages of 22 and 26 who are in the early stages of their careers.

→ Basic financial literacy >< limited experience in balancing money, career, and well-being

Analysis paralysis

They know basic financial theories but still struggle to choose between risky wealth-building and a safer, stable lifestyle.

Lack of long-term vision

They find it hard to see how choices like overtime or personal spending affect their finances over the next 5 years.

Commitment fear

They want to see the possible outcomes of a decision without having to risk real money.

ABOUT OUR GAME

Player role

Become a 22-year-old financial analyst who has just entered the workforce.

Decision-making journey

Make choices on income, spending, investing, and work-life balance across 5 years.

Realistic trade-offs

Every choice affects wealth, physical health, and mental health differently, which will be reflected right in their stats: cash, investment, physical & mental health

Outcome

Receive summary of investment performance, financial status and character's stats at end of round.

Receive total score, performance analysis, and personalized player type based on their progress
